Investigator, advised by Dr. Xuejiao Liu
Research topic: China Real Estate Policy Shift and State-Owned Brokerage Behavior
Responsible for: Literature review, data processing, empirical designing, writing
Abstract: This study investigates the role of state-owned brokerages (SOBs) in stabilizing China's financial markets during the 2021 real estate crisis and subsequent policy adjustments. The analysis reveals that SOBs increased optimism in their real estate investment growth forecasts, aligning closely with state objectives. Concurrently, SOBs heightened their investments in real estate firms, demonstrating their function as stabilizing agents. These findings advance the understanding of SOBs as dual-purpose entities—information intermediaries and policy instruments—within state-led economic frameworks.
